

Greg Useem, Director, Office of Performance Analytics, City of Alexandria, VA

Greg Useem has 20 years of expertise and experience leading government organizations and teams in analytics, performance measurement, and budgeting. Since 2012, he has been the Director of the Office of Performance Analytics, and the Chief Performance Officer for the City of Alexandria, Virginia. An organization nationally recognized as a best practice for public service analytics, most recently earning the Bloomberg What Works Cities Silver Certification and the American Society of Public Administration's Organizational Leadership Award. Greg is also the Co-Founder and Co-Chair for Mid-Atlantic Statnet, a consortium of governments working to further the state of data-driven government.